SafeSchools® Wins 2010 Top 100 Products Award

K-12 Administrators Select Leading Safety Training Program as Industry's Best

CINCINNATI, OH, (December 2, 2010) – District Administration magazine readers voted, and SafeSchools, the leading web-based training system for K-12 employees, was named one of the Top 100 Products of 2010. In this annual awards competition, educators across the U.S. nominate their favorite products by providing details on how they are using a particular program successfully in their district. This year, there were a record number of nominations and SafeSchools was selected as one of the industry's best - only 100 products in the education industry share this prestigious distinction each year.

In a challenging economy where many districts have had to make painful cuts, including eliminating staff, one might assume that the purchase and use of education products and technology might decline. But District Administration magazine indicates that this does not appear to be the case. On the contrary, districts have become even more dependent on effective products and technology solutions that save them time and money. As administrators nationwide work to do more with less, they are now more reliant on programs that streamline processes and increase efficiency.

To help districts become more efficient and maximize already tight budget dollars, the SafeSchools system allows districts to move their entire staff training plan online, completely automating the professional development and compliance management process. Using SafeSchools, administrators can train more staff, in less time, for less money, while making their district a safer place to work and learn. SafeSchools is currently used in more than 2,400 districts in all 50 states, with more implementations daily.

According to Darryl Smith, Director of Human Resources and Operations for Jefferson County School District 509J in Oregon, a SafeSchools customer who submitted one of the program's nominations, "SafeSchools is the best HR decision we have made in years! The system provides an effective way to track training for all staff, including substitutes."

"We're honored to be named one of the best programs in the education industry, but we are especially honored since the nominations came from our customers, who are using SafeSchools to make their schools and districts even safer and more compliant," said Brian Taylor, President and CEO of Scenario Learning.
